

We are a national support provider for people with learning disabilities and we currently support over 90 people in South Yorkshire. Our aim is to support these people to live the lives they really want by taking a person centred approach in everything we do. We look for people who have the qualities we see in ourselves as an organisation; friendly, enthusiastic, honest, reliable, committed and caring.

Can you help the people we support to have a voice and have a choice about where they live, who they live with, and how they spend their days? We are looking for special people who can be a broker, negotiator, researcher and advocate to walk hand-in-hand with the people we support who want to change the big things in their lives. You need to be organised, have good project management skills and have boundless energy and enthusiasm, particularly when the going gets tough. Most of all, you must believe in the right of everyone to live the life they want.
