

Benefit changes

consultation questions

Easy to read, May 2025

The government want to change disability benefits next year.

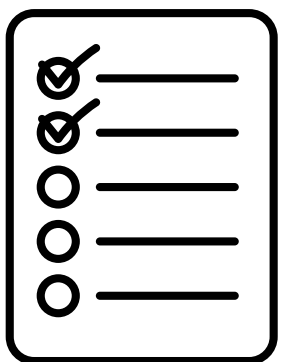

You can see our easy read versions of benefit changes on our website or social media posts.

The government want to know what you think and have made a consultation which you can answer by 30th June at:

bit.ly/BenefitsChanges

We have simplified important questions from the consultation so they are easier to answer for people with disabilities.

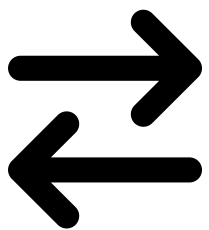

Comment your answers (plus the question number) or send us a private message on social media and we will tell the government.

Benefit changes

consultation questions

Easy to read, May 2025

Here are the simplified questions. We kept the numbers from the consultation so you can compare if you want.

Chapter 2 - benefit changes

1. What can the government do to help people to work without worrying that it will affect their benefits?

2. How should the government support people who lose their benefits because they don't score at least 4 points for one daily task?

3. How can the government make health and care better for people who lose their PIP?

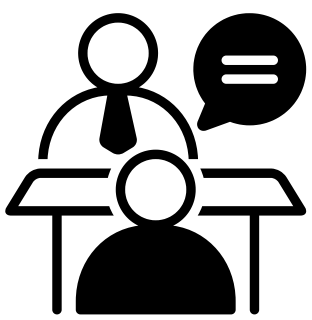

5. What would help people feel safe when meeting the Job Centre to talk about their benefits?

Benefit changes

consultation questions

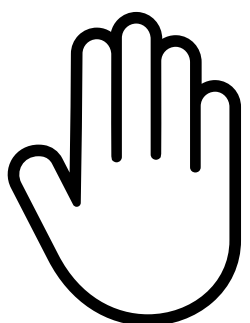

Easy to read, May 2025

Chapter 3 - getting into work

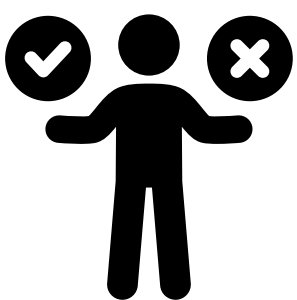

The Job centre will have a new support conversation with people claiming out of work benefits to help them understand what job they could do.

6. How can the government make this inclusive, positive and helpful?

9. Should most people who claim have to have a support conversation to get their benefits?

Some people will continue having support conversations, some will train and other people will expected to look for work.

10. How should the government decide when people are ready to look for work?

Benefit changes consultation questions

Easy to read, May 2025

22

11. Do you think people under 22 should be able to claim the health element of Universal Credit and why?

Chapter 4 - supporting employers

The government want to change Access to Work to give money to both workers and employers.

13. What should employers know about workplace changes so they can be more accessible?

14. What should the government spend money on to make Access to Work help as many people as possible?

Thank you for answering these questions. Dimensions will tell the government what you think without sharing your full name.

dimensions

Tell us by 20th June