

Dimensions Ethnicity Pay Gap report 2025

Dimensions (UK) Ltd is one of the largest not for profit providers of social care supporting people with a learning disability and autistic people in Britain and we are pleased to voluntarily publish our annual ethnicity pay gap report.

This report provides a snapshot of the situation on 5th April 2025. The analysis uses ethnicity data voluntarily disclosed by colleagues and provided with consent for analytical and reporting purposes. At this time 77% of our workforce had shared their ethnicity and of the colleagues who disclosed their ethnicity 66% identified as white and 34% from a Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic background.

The ethnicity pay-gap shows the difference in hourly earnings between white colleagues and Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic (BAME) colleagues, shown as a percentage of white colleagues' earnings.

Pay gap reporting differs from equal pay. Equal pay relates to ensuring people receive equal pay for the same or equivalent work, whereas pay gap reporting examines differences in average earnings between groups across an organisation.

Dimensions (UK) mean and median ethnicity pay gaps are shown in the table below

Ethnicity Pay Gap	2025	2024
Mean (average) hourly pay gap	7.2%	7.2%
Median hourly pay gap	3.0%	1.9%

Hourly Pay quartiles by ethnicity

Pay quartiles represent the distribution of ethnicity by hourly earnings, with colleagues' hourly earnings being grouped to one of four quartiles. The Lower Quartile shows those on the lowest hourly earnings 0–25% of colleagues, Lower Middle Quartile 25–50% of colleagues, Upper Middle Quartile 50–75% of colleagues and Upper Quartile are the 75–100% of colleagues who are paid the highest hourly earnings.

The hourly pay quartiles for Dimensions (UK) are shown below –

Our statement

This is the fourth year that we are voluntarily publishing our Ethnicity Pay Gap report.

In 2025 there was a median (i.e. the middle) hourly pay gap of 3%, which has increased from a 1.9% median pay gap in 2024.

The mean hourly pay gap remained the same as 2024 showing that the mean (i.e. average) hourly rate for white colleagues is 7.2% higher than for colleagues from ethnic minorities.

In 2025, compared with 2024, there was a slight increase (2.03%) in the proportion of ethnic minority colleagues in the lower middle pay quartile, and a small decrease (0.86%) in the upper middle pay quartile. As a median pay gap typically reflects pay at the midpoint of each ethnic group's pay distribution, this movement is likely to have contributed to the increase in the median pay gap. However, the overall distribution across all pay quartiles remained broadly stable, indicating that the change reflects relatively small shifts in workforce composition, rather than a substantial change in overall representation.

Dimensions continues with its ambition to promote equality, respect diversity and ensure inclusion for all colleagues from all backgrounds. This is evident because, of the colleagues who disclosed their ethnicity, 34% are from Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic backgrounds. This compares to 18% of the people in England and Wales being from a Black, Asian, mixed or other ethnic group background (2021 Census data).

A core principle of our remuneration strategy is that it is open and transparent. We fix pay at the appropriate level of relevant salary markets to recruit and retain the calibre of people needed to carry out the roles in an increasingly complex sector, where this is affordable. While this does mean that certain roles are remunerated at higher rates than others, for market reasons, we are pleased that this is not an issue in the context of our ethnicity pay gap. There is no evidence of differences in pay for colleagues working in the same role based on ethnicity, however there is a lower representation of Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic colleagues in senior roles.

Dimensions is genuinely committed to equality of opportunity and inclusion. Some tangible examples of our commitment include:

- A zero-tolerance statement on discrimination that affirms our commitment to not being bystanders and to take action.
- A formal recording process of all incidents of discrimination towards colleagues from other colleagues, people we support, other professionals or members of the public.
- Within the recruitment process for senior managers, creating a role of a critical friend to ensure there is diversity of lived experience and cultural awareness.
- Analysis of all HR casework by ethnic groups to ensure there is no unfair treatment in our processes and activities.
- Signed up to UNISON anti-racism charter which demonstrates our commitment to zero tolerance of this behaviour.

- Mandatory training in Equality, Diversity and Inclusion for all managers and staff.
- An Unconscious Bias pathway, developed for all managers to communicate and participate in with their teams.

- Signing the National Housing Federation Chair's Challenge, committing to bring inclusion and belonging in the boardroom.

- An active campaign entitled 'Dimensions values me as me' to promote that Dimensions values all colleagues 'not despite their diversity but because of it.'
- Celebration and highlighting key dates relating to ethnic diversity, including Black History Month and Ramadan, with reflective blogs from managers and colleagues and online and in-person events.
- A toolkit for managing discrimination from people we support, to ensure colleagues can feel confident we will manage this appropriately.
- Membership with an advisory EDI organisation (Onvero) to seek advice and guidance in assuring our practices are inclusive.
- Achieved a Silver TIDE award in Onvero external assessment for inclusion.

We will not become complacent and will continually review our performance to ensure that Dimensions is a truly inclusive employer with equal opportunities for all.

I confirm that the information in this statement is accurate.
