Automated decision making

When applying for a Support Worker position, you will be invited to participate in a personality assessment (Care Character). This assessment utilises automated decision-making processes to evaluate your suitability for the role based on seven qualities of care. The platform administering this assessment has been validated to ensure its effectiveness in measuring what it claims to measure (construct validity) and predicting job performance (criterion validity). Care Character provides a screening service, the results of which form one component of your application. The overall decision to recruit still lies with the hiring manager (a decision by a human being) based on several factors and is not solely determined by automated means. If you wish to contest or challenge the results of the Care Character screening process, you can do so by contacting the hiring manager directly.
